

APRICOT PAYMENTS MADE TO GROWERS HERE LAST WEEK

Washington township grower-members of the California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association received progress payments on the 1934 apricot pool. Total payments by the association at this date exceeded $200,000, paid to members in advance of the December 4 tax date.

The apricot payment is an addition of three cents per pound on fancy and quality "A" classifications and two and one-half cents per pound on quality "B" and Tilton grades. This brings the members' payments to date up to thirteen cents and better on an average quality of Sun-sweet grade deliveries.

On the 1934 apricot pit deliveries the growers received one-half cent per pound in the recent payment.

Peach growers likewise received additional remittances last week.

CHAIRMAN URGES PURCHASE OF XMAS SEALS

Christmas Seal sale committees of Washington township completed their work last week and Christmas Seals were mailed to residents of the township on Thanksgiving Day, according to Mrs. J. E. Thane, of Niles, chairman of the township advisory committee.

Speaking of the sale this week, Mrs. Thane said: "Christmas Seals go on sale throughout Alameda county at this time each year. Your mailman delivers your letter containing these little warriors that mean so much in the fight against tuberculosis.

"Christmas seals of 1934 celebrate the founding of the first tuberculosis sanatorium in the United States, built by Dr. Edward Trudeau, in the Adirondacks fifty years ago.

"The Christmas Seal design this year features the picture of the humble little two-bed cottage from which the modern sanatorium movement originated. Today there are over 600 sanatoriums providing 87,000 beds for the tuberculous.

"Christmas Seals sold this year will provide funds to help carry on this work during the coming year in clinics, in the schools and among the people of the county."

NEARS COMPLETION

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Keller's new home, on the Keller ranch at the end of Morrison avenue, will soon be completed. Recent rains had delayed the construction. While waiting for their new place to be finished, Mr. and Mrs. Keller have been living in a cottage at the Hotel Belvoir. Mrs. Keller is the former Miss Marie Donahue, of Oakland.

CHAMBER MAY TAKE UP TASK OF FIRST STREET PLANTING

Shrubbery Suggested For North Side of Street In Place of Fence

Plans for beautifying Niles' First street, by planting hedges and shrubs along the present line of the northern side were launched at the meeting of the Niles Chamber of Commerce Monday. The suggestion was made by A. J. Petsche.

Petsche recommended that the civic group look into the possibility of replacing the unsightly fence with a hedge, in order that the uninspiring view of the railroad yards may be cut off. He suggested that the chamber extend its effort to create a garden in the now barren places.

Following a motion that the civic group undertake the task, W. B. Kirk stated that there may be a chance that the work could be done by federal relief crews, and urged the group to look into possibilities to that end. Chamber President F. V. Jones appointed W. B. Kirk, A. J. Petsche, Harvey Braun and E. A. Ellisworth as a committee to begin investigation at once.

Previous to the business session, W. B. Kirk and Judge J. A. Silva gave a resume of conditions and famous characters in Niles in past days. Kirk, who celebrated his thirty-eighth year as a resident here yesterday, lauded the town and expressed his determination to remain here. He told of early days at the California Nursery under John Rock, founder of that company, adding humorous touches about the personnel. His remarks were amplified by Judge J. A. Silva, who discussed old methods of farming and referred to the low wage scale of the former days.

H. L. Scott, baseball committeeman, made a report of recent activities of the team. He stated that collections at the games during the past few weeks have been gratifying. Scott said that the team may resume a league schedule when weather will permit regular Sunday games.

Xmas Pageant Will Be Staged at Niles School

A Christmas pageant, staged by members of the sixth and seventh grades under the direction of Miss Mildred Bennett, will be produced at the Niles grammar school next Friday afternoon, December 14. There will be two performances, one at 1:15 o'clock for the school children, and one at 2:30 p. m. for the parents and others who attend.

Miss Bennett will complete her cast early next week.

A. J. Petsche attended a Pacific Gas & Electric Company agents' meeting in Oakland one evening last week.

Mrs. Egizia Di Giulio and family entertained friends from San Francisco on Thanksgiving Day.

FLAMES RAZE HOME OF CHEMIST AT SUNOL TUESDAY

Thought to have started from chimney sparks and fanned by a high wind, flames destroyed the Ashton Britten home at Sunol Tuesday morning in spite of the combined efforts of the Niles and Pleasanton fire departments.

The Niles department responded to the alarm when it became apparent that the blaze was rapidly gaining headway. The main structure of the home was razed, efforts of the firemen preventing spread of the blaze to an adjoining garage and laboratory.

Britten, a chemist, was employed by the city of Pleasanton some time ago to work out a plan whereby the town would be quit of the objectionable odors of the sewer farm. He maintains a vineyard near the home.

Damage by the flames is estimated at several thousand dollars.

Robert Zwissig, fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Zwissig, is recovering from a badly cut knee, suffered when he fell from a wagon on the Zwissig dairy recently.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS HAVE INITIATION CEREMONY HERE

Members of the Laura Loma parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, gathered at the I. O. O. F. hall Tuesday evening for an initiation ceremony, at which Mrs. Lillian Phillips, of Sacramento, became a member of the group.

Mrs. Phillips, a former resident of Niles, is known to many here. Inasmuch as she is a charter member of the Laura Loma parlor, the initiation ceremony was in part a welcome back to Niles.

Officers who conducted the ceremony, under the direction of Mrs. Lillian Burr, president, were Miss Martha Crane, Katherine Plumb and Isabelle Cahill. Others assisted.

JUNIOR CHAMBER OFFICERS WILL BE ELECTED MONDAY

Committee Engaged With Membership and By-Laws This Week

Organization of the Niles Junior Chamber of Commerce continued smoothly this week with the provisional committee working out details of the by-laws in preparation for submission before the group at the second meeting next Monday evening. Sam Kerns, provisional chairman, voiced his satisfaction with progress to date.

Launched on November 26 with the assistance of the Pleasanton Junior Chamber, the Niles organization will draw its membership from the younger businessmen and associates in the Niles voting district. The maximum age for active members will be forty years. Older men may become honorary members, with all privileges except that of casting their ballots on civic questions.

Pending complete organization, the group is being directed by the provisional chairman and committee.

At the next meeting, slated for Monday evening at 7 o'clock at the I. O. O. F. hall, the by-laws will be adopted and officers elected. Installation of officers will take place after the first of the year. The installation will be conducted by members of the county organization with the assistance of the Pleasanton Junior Chamber.

The initial membership drive is being conducted this week by members of the committee.

AT SEATTLE

Mrs. Billie Waterson writes from Seattle that her trip from Niles to the northern city was made without mishap. She has joined her husband, Jimmie Waterson, recently employed in Seattle by the Veneer Package Corporation. They will make their home there. Mr. and Mrs. Waterson have a wide circle of friends in this district.

Mrs. William Shehan and son, James, of Munnsville, New York, left last Thursday for their home there after two weeks' stay with Mr. and Mrs. Dan Marble. It was the Shehan's first trip to California.

J. T. CHAMPION WILL BUILD ON FORMER ESSANAY LOT

Further expansion of Niles to the west along First street will begin when J. T. Champion, of Niles starts construction of a building and service station on the northwest corner of First and "G" streets, on the lot formerly occupied by the old Essanay building, razed last year.

Champion, who purchased the lot outright, states that he will erect a durable, attractive service station and building, of white stucco and red tile roof, in keeping with the historical flavor of the district. He states that he will later enlarge his establishment to house a super-service station. The frontage on First street is eighty feet.

Since the clearing of the lot last year, much comment has been passed here concerning the use to which the valuable corner would eventually be put. Champion, who will engage in the construction work himself, said that the work will begin at once.

Y.L.I. CARD PARTY AT I.O.O.F. HALL THIS EVENING

The annual turkey whist, given by the De Guadalupe Institute of the Y. L. I., will be held tonight in the I. O. O. F. hall, Niles, according to members this week. Preparations for the affair have been under way for several weeks, according to Mrs. Gertrude Enos, publicity chairman.

In addition to the door prize and turkey prizes, there will be numerous awards. Play will begin at 8:30 p. m.

Records of past parties of a similar nature given by the local institute show that public interest is aroused each year. A large crowd is expected.

Brisk Breeze Brings Debris to First Street

Niles First street, unwashed and unswept for many weeks, suffered a fresh inundation of debris and dust Tuesday when a brisk northeast wind stirred leaves on the east side and deposited them in sundry gusts. Pedestrians were to be seen dodging tumble-weeds and similar other flora borne in on the breeze.

In a number of places the wind did the service of cleaning away old papers and leaves.

EDITORIAL COMMENT By NORMAN H. PARKS, Publisher Register

WHY THE EXPLANATION?

It seems to us, that as long as the reactionary press have paid good money for the Sinclair rights to his story, "I, Candidate for Governor, and How I Got Licked," and are printing the installments daily, they would quit apologizing for featuring them in their papers. They seem to be terribly concerned that some imbecile reader might think them endorsing one single word that the Pasadena author has to write about the late unpleasantness.

Why not be honest and say: "It's this way folks; Sinclair had this story for sale, exclusive in each city in California and other states. Well, if we didn't buy it our competitor would, and what Sinclair has to say is of vital interest to most of our readers and those who don't read our paper. Running the articles will gain us circulation, and entertain our regular subscribers. So there you are. Read 'em or leave 'em."

PIONEER WOMAN ANSWERS SUMMONS THANKSGIVING DAY

Mrs. Florence Hudson Is Called at Daughter's Home In Berkeley

Funeral services were held in Oakland Saturday afternoon for Mrs. Florence Hudson, 79, one of the most colorful of southern Alameda county's remaining pioneers. She had lived in Niles since 1885.

Stricken at a Thanksgiving party Thursday at the Berkeley home of her daughter, Mrs. Walter Newman, Mrs. Hudson passed away with all of her four daughters and her many grandchildren gathered at her bedside. Death was ascribed to a heart attack. Previous to the fatal spell, Mrs. Hudson had been in apparent good health.

Feeling that she was unable to maintain it as she would like, Mrs. Hudson broke up her household here last July and went to live with her daughters. She had planned to spend the summer months in Auburn and to winter in San Diego. She had divided her property and distributed personal and family effects among her daughters and close friends when she left Niles.

Mrs. Hudson was the daughter of Joshua A. Mitchell, who was master of one of the first clipper ships. His ship was wrecked on a reef in the south seas during a heavy storm, and Mitchell and several members of his crew finally reached Honolulu after spending forty days at sea in an open boat and experiencing the most unbelievable hardships.

Mark Twain was working as a reporter in Honolulu at the time and the interview he obtained from Captain Mitchell led to the acceptance of his first magazine story. It was published in the Atlantic magazine, but as Mark Twain was unknown and his handwriting poor, the story was published under the name of "Mike Swain."

Mrs. Hudson had the log book which her father kept during that experience, and also the story as it appeared in the Atlantic by the famous humorist. Among her letters and documents she had several letters written to her father and to her by Mark Twain.

A native of Freeport, Maine, Mrs. Hudson came to San Francisco in 1855, when she was twenty-two years of age. She met George H. Hudson while on a voyage to New York, and married him a year later in San Francisco. They came to Niles in 1885 and took up residence on the place where Mrs. Hudson lived until last July.

She was active for many years in women's clubs, social and church work. The club house at Centerville was built while she was president of the Country Club. She was a charter member of that organization. She was one of the founders of the Niles free library and a member of the Golden Wedding Club, composed of four couples and herself, all between seventy and eighty years of age.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Chester Hatch and Mrs. Claire Barnicott, of Auburn; Mrs. Fred Button, of San Diego, and Mrs. Walter Newman, of Berkeley. There are three granddaughters and two grandsons.

Funeral services were Saturday afternoon at the Chapel of Chimes in Berkeley, with the Rev. Wesley Dexter Gordon officiating. Cremation followed.

Find Phosphorus Test Worth While

Reveals Great Variation in Make-Up of Soils to Grow Legumes.

By C. M. Linsley, Soils Extension Specialist, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

Vast changes now being made in cropping systems on farms will be less risky if farmers test their soils for available phosphorus, as well as for limestone, before seeding legumes and other crops.

Tests made on thousands of acres of farm land throughout the state have shown that soils vary tremendously in their available phosphorus content, as well as in acidity. Consequently, there is a great variation in the ability of soils to produce legumes, since these crops have definite phosphorus requirements as well as certain lime needs.

It has been estimated that some 1,800,000 acres of Illinois land is being taken out of grain production and that a large proportion of this acreage is being seeded to legumes. The only sound basis for making such adjustments is to use the phosphorus test along with the soil acidity test.

These two tests together will show: (1) what legume is best adapted to a given piece of land; (2) what land might be best suited to grow a certain kind of legume; and (3) whether any phosphorus or limestone need be applied for the successful growing of legumes.

The test described was developed four years ago by the experiment station of the agricultural college, and it is coming into new prominence now because of the widespread shifts in production.

All that is required for making the test is the phosphorus testing solution and a tin rod, together with a set of vials with corks and a rack to hold them. A small sample of the soil is shaken up in a vial of the solution, and if the soil is low in available phosphorus, the solution remains uncolored. As the phosphorus content of the soil increases, the color of the solution changes to blue of different shades, depending upon the amount of phosphorus present.

Soy Beans Yield "Pinch" Hay Crop

Should Be Planted on Soils High Enough in Lime to Grow Clover.

By Prof. John Barron of the New York State College of Agriculture.—WNU Service.

Soy beans or mixtures in which soy beans occur will provide farmers with the second best emergency hay crop.

Although soy beans give a satisfactory yield on sour soils, they do best on soils high enough in lime to grow the common clovers well. The earlier they are sown, the better. For early planting, the Wilson variety of soy beans is recommended. For later sowings, the Black Eyebrow and Manchu varieties may be used. About 115 pounds of seed to the acre should be enough.

Sudan grass is best adapted for soy bean mixtures. When a mixture is used, about 60 pounds of soy beans and 15 to 20 pounds of sudan grass to the acre is advised.

If the land chosen for a catch hay crop, when soy beans are to be planted, happens to be slightly wet, it would be wise to use Japanese millet along with soy beans rather than the soy beans alone or a mixture of soy beans and sudan grass. The procedure with the Japanese millet is the same as for sudan grass.

For soy beans and soy bean combinations, fertilize with at least 200 pounds of superphosphate to the acre, and always inoculate the soy bean seed.

Sowing of oats and sorghum, or oats and sudan grass may take place for extra pasturage. Soil conditions should be about the same as for good corn.

Sunflowers Recommended to Dairymen for Silage

Sunflowers may be grown by many farmers this year to make silage for their dairy cattle, as a result of damage to other crops by chinch bugs and drouth, according to Prof. C. S. Rhode, chief in dairy extension at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

The fact that sunflowers are

Valuable Bud Sports May Be Lost by Not Labeling

Fruit growers should always be on the watch for limbs of their trees that bear unusually desirable fruit or that bear at unusual times, say fruit specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. It is probable that many desirable varieties in some of our fruit crops have been lost through the pruning knife merely because they were not marked for preservation. These bud sports or variants are of scientific interest and may prove of commercial value if preserved.

It is probable, scientists think, that the Washington navel orange was a variant on a Brazilian tree. The marsh seedless grapefruit variety may have originated as a sport. Some of the deciduous fruits have also produced variants of value. Recently members of the department on the Pacific coast inspected a variant of a standard plum which ripens a superior fruit about six weeks later than the main crop. In this case the owner of the orchard had realized that a fruit ripening after the main crop had been sold might have special market value, and had propagated from the limb variant so that the variety may be preserved.

chinch-bug resistant makes them a possible silage crop this year. In past seasons when bugs have been bad, dairymen have grown sunflowers and have found that the resulting silage was fairly palatable, Rhode said. Cows fed sunflower silage, however, do not generally produce as well as those given regular corn silage.

Where barley fields have been practically destroyed by the chinch bugs, farmers may seed a portion of this land to sunflowers. The crop may be seeded any time and is usually drilled in rows 42 inches apart with the plants 10 inches apart in the rows.

Experiments conducted at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, indicate that the best time to cut sunflowers for silage is when about one-fourth of the plants are in bloom. Silage made from sunflowers at this stage is more palatable and is superior for milk production to that made from more mature plants. The composition and flavor of the milk are not affected by sunflower silage.

A Wyoming Claim

IT WAS supper time at the Allen ranch in Wyoming.

The ranch foreman usually supped with the family, and he entered the room through one door just as Mrs. Allen and her daughter, Judith, sat down at table.

"My husband has had a telephone message from Red Spider," said Mrs. Allen to the foreman, Rex Thomas, "and so he had an early supper and started off—perhaps you saw him?"

"I did see him riding out of the gate," admitted Thomas, "just as I came in from the upper pasture." He waved his hand. "Has something come up at Red Spider?"

"Something to do with business—that is the worst of being a sheriff—sometimes I wish Jim would give up his appointment."

"I saw Bob Blake, Miss Judith," said Thomas with a humorous twinkle in his eye.

Judith flushed, and a warm look came into her lovely brown eyes.

"I suppose he was riding Schuyler's herd," she said with assumed indifference.

"Riding something—I'll be hanged if I entirely understood the situation—he was going like lightning along the old Patch trail."

Judith said nothing, but she looked rather worried, and Mrs. Allen carried on a desultory conversation until the meal ended. Then, while Mrs. Allen washed her silver and fine china, Chang, the Chinese cook, cleared off the table and Judith went out to the broad veranda and sat down with a book. But the girl's eyes were not on the printed page—they scanned the distant trail over which a racy black horse might come skimming—Bob Blake always came that way!

To Judith Allen, just at this time, most of the world consisted of Bob Blake's tall, active figure. Though they were not engaged, Judith's parents rather expected the tall cowpuncher to ask the fatal question any day, and Sheriff Allen had his answer all ready.

"I like you, Bob—there isn't another boy I would rather give my girl to! But you're nothing except a line rider for Old Man Schuyler—and you've got to be more than that if you want our Judith!" That is what Sheriff Allen had planned to say when Bob Blake came to see him about Judith, but he had never told anybody excepting his wife, and she, well-meaning soul if ever there was one, had confided in Judith.

So Judith Allen knew that much, anyway, and perhaps she was thinking that her father might have met Bob, and they had talked it out, as men are apt to do.

The casual remark of the foreman, Thomas, had roused her thoughts and made her uneasy.

Later that evening Sheriff Allen came home, and with him came Bob Blake, of all people.

"I arrested this fellow," grinned the sheriff, "for loitering on the trail coming to the Blue Bottle!" Bob grinned sheepishly.

"He told me," said Bob, "that I was breaking the traffic laws for speeding!"

"Bob's made a voyage of discovery during the past week," said the sheriff, "and he is inviting the family (you, too, mother—I'll drive you in the backboard) to start with him at nine o'clock tomorrow morning. I guess we'll be back in time for supper!"

Bob Blake remained that night at the Blue Bottle ranch and the next morning they started forth—Bob and Judith riding their horses, and the sheriff driving two rangy colts. In the shafts of the backboard in which his wife was snugly placed.

They rode for many miles across the prairie, then up into the broken hills where they never met a soul, and then at last they rounded a wooded hillock, crossed a brawling stream, and Bob told them to stop.

It was noon and the sun shone down through one broken space in the thick tree tops, and fell into the bed of the stream where it was overhung by thick mosses and long, tangled roots.

Easy Pickings

HE STOOD at the curb of the taxicab stand, swaying upon his feet as though at any moment he might fall in a heap in the gutter. On his handsome young face was an expression of sobriety—alcoholic sobriety—and infinite boredom.

Scores of cabs had pulled up and received fares while he stood there on the edge of the pavement, and repeatedly he had made as if to board one, only to change his mind at the last minute.

Finally the man's discriminating taste seemed to find fulfillment. A shiny black taxi of the independent type pulled up, and the driver, a beefy-faced individual with a wart on his chin, called: "Cab, sir!"

The inebriate hiccupped, lurched slightly upon his feet, and peered at the driver. At his nod the driver jumped out to hold the cab door open. In the latter's small, closely set black eyes a glimmer of doubtful recognition showed.

The fare wet his lips with his tongue. "Guess this is a good tacksil, f'righ?" he muttered.

Out into the lane of traffic he swung the cab, not bothering to inquire for his fare's address. And as he drove, Beefy-Face gloated quietly to himself. Here was another drunk to take over for every bit of dough in his pocket. Easy pickings!

Glancing into the mirror above the windshield, the driver scrutinized the huddled form in the rear. This guy looked good for a couple hundred bucks. Well-dressed. He looked familiar, too. Then, suddenly, recognition came to him. Why, this bloke was the one he had rolled two, three, maybe four times before.

Beefy-Face made straight for a lonely park he knew, and soon he had nosed the cab into a dark lane flanked by thick-foliated trees. Here he stopped the taxi.

Climbing down from the wheel, he opened the cab's rear door and saw his passenger sprawled upon the seat, with left arm dangling almost to the floor.

The driver leaned through the door, dragged out the inert form and half carried, half dragged it to the edge of the lane. In a second he had transferred a fat roll of banknotes from the victim's pocket to his own. A few moments later the taxicab was humming out of the park.

An hour or so later the handsome young man again was standing at the curb of the taxi stand, in almost the same spot he had occupied before. Now, however, he stood firmly upon his feet, and he seemed mildly interested in a commotion taking place at the end of the line of cabs.

Three officious-looking men, who had been scanning license plates of arriving cabs, suddenly had jumped upon the running board of a black taxi and were dragging the driver of you," said Bob rather gravely.

They stood and watched him expectantly. "Mr. and Mrs. Allen, of course, you know I love Judith," he said flushing beneath his bronze, "and now I am going to ask you for your daughter. Of course, I am just hoping that Judith likes me well enough to—" he paused then and stared rapturously at the girl who had stepped forward and slipped her slim hand in his large brown one, clinging to it firmly.

"There, I guess that that proves she does like me a whole lot," he went on choking a little, "and though you folks all think I am just a line rider, I am telling you I am a whole lot more than that! I am ambitious myself, and so, if you'll just glance down there where the sun is shining right through the water onto the prettiest bit of gold deposit—well, I've been taking it out for weeks—and believe me I am a happy man! I've got a claim here, and my bank account at Cheyenne is more than ten thousand dollars—yes, sir—and if you don't mind turning your heads just a moment, I want to kiss Judith here—and then, we'll have some lunch!"

Enrich Soil for Alfalfa Growing

Building Up Fertility Most Important, According to an Authority.

By R. J. Harris, Superintendent Experiment Station Farm, Colorado State College.—WNU Service.

The first step in growing alfalfa is to build up the fertility of soils on which it is to be planted unless it is already in good condition.

When the soil is acid, one to three tons of lime should be applied to the acre. Soil that has been neglected or which is in a poor state of fertility should have heavy applications of manure early in the spring. The manure should be mixed into the soil with a disk harrow. Then a crop of soy beans should be turned under.

In the fall the field should be plowed and allowed to lie fallow during the winter freezes. Sow lespedeza in February and turn it under when it has reached maximum growth, which should not be later than September 1. The crop should be disked well before turning under. Then the lime should be disked into the soil and the field left to stand for two weeks. Next should be an application of 600 pounds of 4-12-4 fertilizer per acre and another disk, followed by a section harrow and then a cultipacker.

Following the two seasons of preparing the soil, at least 25 pounds of quality alfalfa seed should be sown to the acre by drill or by hand between September 15 and October 15. If the fall seeding does not produce a full stand, another seeding may be made about March 1 to 15 or sooner if the weather is favorable.

Double indications give the best results. Bacteria culture and soil from fields which have been growing alfalfa are good inoculants.

Farmers whose soil is in a high state of fertility may start their alfalfa crops this fall without going through two seasons of preparation mentioned above.

from behind the wheel. The driver, a beefy fellow with a wart on the chin, had been on the point of lighting a cigarette.

After pulling him from the cab, two of the men held him while a third took a fat roll of bills from one of his pockets. The three officious-looking men examined these intently, then nodded grimly to one another before hurrying their captive toward a sedan up at the front of the line.

As the trio came past with their prisoner, Beefy-Face caught sight of the young man at the curb. He blinked in astonishment, then stopping suddenly, exclaimed:

"Say, bo, for God's sake tell these federal dicks I robbed ya! Now, didn't I?" he pleaded. "Didn't I take ya out to the park an' roll ya clean?"

The young man turned to the nearest detective, mild surprise and annoyance in his voice when he spoke. "This man," indicating Beefy-Face with an impatient jerk of the head, "must be drunk—or crazy. Yes, I feel sure he's crazy." "No, he ain't crazy," said the detective. "He's just tryin' to pass the buck." He jerked the driver's arm angrily. "Come on, you, we got the goods on you. This was one time a 'nonymous phone tip turned out to be the real McCoy."

The property man looked up at the male lead of "Easy Pickings" came through the door backstage. There was something like paternal devotion in the former's eyes as the handsome young actor, a cigarette held listlessly in the fingers of his left hand, strode toward him.

"Say, Proppey," said the young man, a look of affected concern accentuating the soberness of his features, "can you get another roll of money for the second act?"

The other nodded absently, then as if remembering something belatedly, exclaimed: "My gosh, Mr. Trudings! you didn't get-a-here-drunk and pass off any of that money in mistake, did you?"

Mr. Trudings sighed, and with well-manicured hands gestured derisively. "No," he said. "Certainly not. A fine time I'd have, better to pass stage money."

AROUND CAPE HORN IN A 25-FOOT BOAT

Explorer Tells of Exciting Experiences at Sea.

Washington.—"Seals, playing on the rocks, threw back their heads and gargled sea water with a noise like calves bawling, as we beat around story Cape Horn. For 50 days after leaving Magallanes, on the Straits of Tierra del Fuego, we saw not a single human being except a few wild Alacaluf Indians on Burnt Island. They looked so fierce, running along their cold, lonely beach and shouting at us, that we sailed on past them."

So says Amos Burg, in a report to the National Geographic society, under whose auspices he is exploring the southernmost tip of the western hemisphere, which is nearest the South pole of all continental lands.

"Magallanes itself is a long way from Portland, Ore., where my trip began. But from Magallanes to Cape Horn seems even farther, because of the strange sense of gloom that hangs over these chilly solitudes, and the sudden fury of the persistent gales. The sea was smooth as glass the day we left Magallanes; yet, in one short hour so terrific a gale had blown up that the waters became a smoking maelstrom and hull rattled against our bounding boat like machine-gun fire."

Many Stormy Days.

"Such storms are known to rage for three weeks. One year had 300 stormy days. On Navarin Island we found a man named Ken Williams, an otter hunter, and took him aboard; that made three, in our 25-foot power boat, bound for the Islands of the Horn. Crossing the open sea from Nassau bay to Cape Horn, on Grevy island, the full fury of the gales hit us. I feared being blown out to sea, for our propeller was fouled with kelp. So much salt water blew through the air that bareheaded Ken Williams' hair looked as if it had been lathered."

"Even when the storms were at their worst, and it seemed we must surely swamp, Ken Williams would suddenly stand up and point to some rocky nook, and shout above the wind's roar, 'I shot an otter over there once!'"

"His father was a pioneer missionary among the Yaghan Indians, and Williams himself, besides being a hunter, owns sheep that range some of these islands. He is therefore the most southerly sheep-herder in the western hemisphere."

"Away down here at the bottom of the western world, even separated from the tip of South America itself by weeks of stormy seas, and dependent wholly on a tiny lifeboat that I bought at a sale from the United States coast guard and shipped here, I can't help thinking—especially when it storms—about how far it is back to Portland, Ore. In a calm spell we got ashore at Baily Island, and from a peak we saw the big Cloven cliff on Horn Island itself, and also the Wollaston and Hermite groups that mark the very last land before the jump-off into cold waters that stretch to the Antarctic regions."

Make Lonely Landings.

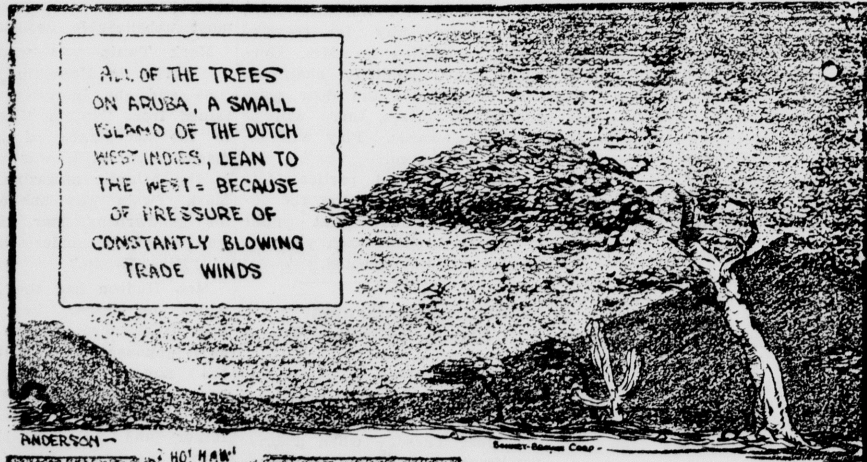

"The American ship carpenters who built our 25-foot boat, the 'Dor-Jun,' of course, never dreamed that she would one day make this historic voyage. But how proud they would be, could they have seen her rounding Cape Horn, through seas that filled even Drake Cavendish and Magellan himself with dismay; seas, in fact, often so rough that in early days many Portuguese and Spanish sailors gave up the fight, and went back up the coast, and found happiness in the lotus life of pioneer Brazil."

"Hundreds of landings we made, at strange, lonely nooks on rocky shores where barking seals, otters and birds only make man's absence more impressive. In the broken surf on the outer side of the Horn itself a lot of Emperor Penguins are colonized."

"Glad we were, and weary, back once more in the town of Magallanes, which used to be called Punta Arenas. To you, it's just a name; a name for a far-away sheep town stuck somewhere below Patagonia, on the Straits of Tierra del Fuego. To us, after cold, wet, dangerous weeks on end, it was civilization again. What if its people are mostly Slavs, Austrians and Italians, who speak tongues that are strange to us, and who paint the roofs in bright colors, and build tight board fences around their gardens so the gales will not blow all the dirt away! Or, what if the gales from Patagonia do bring clouds of dust, filled with grass seeds from distant pampas, and then tear across the straits, lifting sheets of water into the air and threshing them about till all the sea has the aspect of smoking prairie grass? It's still Magallanes, a city, a place of streets, stores, mail from home, dry clothes, and a wireless station."

CHERRY INDUSTRY WILL OVERHAUL MARKET PLAN

Washington township cherry business was represented at a meeting held in Giannini Hall, on the University of California campus at Berkeley Tuesday and yesterday, when the state Farm Bureau Federation summoned growers from the cherry sections to decide whether to draw up a canning agreement under AAA or to outline a plan to fit in with the California pro-rate act.

The plan decided upon will be drawn up and submitted to the growers who stayed at home and finally taken to the northwest for the approval of the growers there. This program resulted from discussions at the recent State Farm Bureau convention at Bakersfield. Local cherry growers should benefit by the outcome.

A. H. Harrison, cherry association head, regards the plan as the only way to save the California industry. He recently called the industry together and got it to forward a protest to Washington against the threatened reciprocal trade treaty's 50 per cent cut in the tariff. Cherries are only one of many California crops in danger from the proposed tariff reductions.

REORGANIZATION OF SEA SCOUTS MAY TAKE PLACE

If a suitable and convenient anchorage can be secured, a boat will be obtained. The sea scout unit was formed in this district about two years ago.

Peters had been at his mail-carrying task since last July. His sudden death leaves a vacancy that will be filled later through competitive bids.

A native of Germany, Peters is survived by his wife Mrs. Sophie Peters, and the following children: Mrs. Mattie Cedarstaff, Mrs. Ruth Markey, Walton and Karl Peters.

FUTURE FARMERS' EXPERIMENTS MAY HELP AGRICULTURE

Indications Now Point To Success of Series Of Tests Here

Intelligent, systematic experimentation in the agricultural field, that may lead to large profits for the farmers of Washington township, and eventually to the advantage of the entire industry, is being carried on at the present time by the Future Farmers at the Washington Union High school under the direction of their instructor and advisor, Paul Daugherty.

Of primary importance among the experiments is one in which cauliflower, a major crop in this district, is being raised on thirty-two plots of one-tenth of an acre in size, and each treated with a different fertilizer or combination of fertilizers. The plots are separated by check, or guard plots, to insure accurate delineation of results. The fertilizers used, in various combinations are: ammonium phosphate, sulphate of potash, super-phosphate, gypsum, manure, and three forms of lime. According to Daugherty, results of this trial bid fair to better the product grown at large here.

Of equal importance and interest is a test being made with potatoes, proving the greater yield to be had in the hill regions of the district by planting Bliss Triumphs in place of the usual Garnets, commonly grown here. The Bliss variety, tried carefully, has produced one third again in weight over the Garnets. To prove the superiority of the Bliss over the Garnet as an early bearer, ten sacks of seed of the former species have been planted on six township farms, along with equal quantities of the Garnets. The resulting yield will be carefully tabulated.

T. D. Witherly, Mission San Jose farmer, is assisting the boys in another experiment, this one to discover better and earlier varieties of peas for planting here. Inasmuch as Alameda county ranks second in shipment of green peas, improvement of the product will result in additional profits for growers.

With the assistance of B. L. Wade, department of agriculture specialist in peas, and directed by Daugherty, the Future Farmers last week planted fifty varieties, each repeated at random five times in rows twenty-seven feet long. At harvest time the boys will keep close watch of the resulting diverse weights. Wade and Daugherty will judge market value of each variety.

The group is also experimenting with cover crops.

Eugene Dusterberry Undergoes Operation

Stricken with acute appendicitis Saturday, after he had returned to the University of California from a holiday with his parents, Eugene Dusterberry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dusterberry, is this week dangerously ill at the Cowell Memorial hospital on the university campus.

Young Dusterberry, student head of Bowles Hall, university dormitory, was unwell when he left Centerville Saturday morning, but stated that coming final examinations and matters of business in Berkeley demanded his presence there. He collapsed shortly after his arrival in Berkeley, and was rushed to the hospital, where he was immediately operated upon.

Frank Madruga, accompanied by Joe Pashote, of Newark, attended an automobile dealers meeting in San Francisco.

William Pattinson was a business visitor in Martinez Tuesday morning.

Mrs. A. B. Rose attended the funeral of J. S. Santos, an uncle, in San Leandro Monday.

GARIN COMPANY TO HAVE BOX PLANT NEAR NILES

The H. P. Garin Company, growers and shippers of fresh vegetables have taken over the large, vacant warehouse near the Western Pacific depot, Niles, and will henceforth operate it as a box-building plant, it was reported here recently.

The building, 50 by 250 feet, has not been used for several years. The Garin company plans to continue operation of the new establishment throughout the year. George King, long-time employee of the company, will be in charge of the box plant.

LIONS BIG XMAS PARTY TO BE HELD ON DECEMBER 19

Entertainment for the members of the Lions Club and their families will be the outcome of the recent club meet at which it was decided to hold the annual Christmas party on December 19 at the club house in Centerville.

There will be a Christmas tree and Santa Claus will be on hand. A program and refreshments will add to the merriment of the evening.

At a directors meeting last night, it was decided to stage the farce comedy, "When Men Marry," on the week-end of January 28. It will be played two nights, Friday and Saturday. The club is putting on the play with the assistance of an eastern company. The talent will be drawn from the ranks of Washington township businessmen.

Counting of funds collected at the annual whist recently after all expenses had been paid showed a substantial margin left for the organization. Forty-one turkeys, and numerous other prizes were given out.

Kin Of Frank Noia Is Buried Here Wednesday

Funeral services were held at the Chapel of Palms yesterday for Alfonso G. Martin, 57, of Gridley, killed in a train-auto accident near that place on December 1. Martin was a brother-in-law of Frank Noia and an uncle of Mrs. Inez Silva, both of this city.

Did you ever stop to think?

By Edson R. Waite

Money spent at home helps you and your city. Money spent away from home helps some other city. This habit of sending away to distant points for printing that you can get at home is becoming too common. I quote an editorial from the Penang Gazette and Straits Chronicle, which should be read carefully by every businessman. The editor says:

"We have received an interesting little booklet issued by Messrs. Mansfield & Company, Ltd. The booklet is a mine of information and gives details not only for traveling to and from Europe but of local leave and extended holiday trips which can be made by vessels of companies for which the firm act as agents.
We were particularly glad to note in the foreword the following mention of Penang:

"The firm of Mansfield & Co., Ltd., was founded in Singapore in 1868, with branches in Sandakan and Penang.
Although the Sandakan branch is no longer in existence, that at Penang continues to grow in importance."

"And just one word of complaint. Why was it considered necessary to send to Europe for the production of the booklet?
It is a neat affair, but there is nothing in it beyond the ability of Malayan firms to produce.

"Spend in Malaya First' would be a good motto for those of us who earn our daily bread in this country."

Do they Borrow Your Collection Of Circular Letters?

HAVE YOUR neighbors ever dropped into your home to borrow the weekly collection of circular letters that the users think are as good as advertising in a country newspaper?

Few people realize the actual coverage of even the modest country newspaper. Not long ago an advertising expert is quoted as saying that careful research had ascertained that a certain well known metropolitan paper is read, an average, for the space of twenty minutes, while the average country newspaper has a "reading life" of three hours to its credit! It is kept around the house for a week and everyone in the family takes his turn in going through its pages. And its readers are really increased for the reason that oftentimes the paper is borrowed by those not fortunate to be a subscriber.

There is nothing in the way of an advertising medium that circulates in Washington Township that is as persistently read and digested as regularly and thoroughly as the Township Register.

NILES BEATS SOX AGAIN SUNDAY; SCORE 7-5

The Oakland Black Sox, colored nine, returned to Niles again last Sunday to take another beating at the hands of the Niles C of C's. This time the local team triumphed by a score of 7 to 5. Niles scored first in the first inning when Silva tripled after the Sox had allowed a runner on base through two fumbles. The second Niles tally came in the second frame on a double and a single, with two more following in the fifth with a single and a home run. The last two Niles markers were chalked up in the seventh when a stolen base, a single and then another double moved the men around.

Bob Silva, of the Niles nine, was far and away the best hitter when he tallied a single, a triple and a homer in three attempts. Clarence Pine collected two doubles in four trips to the plate.

Undaunted by the consecutive Niles victories, the Black Sox invited the C of C's to play them on their home grounds, at Berkeley Sunday.

The Sox play a clean brand of baseball and are an amusing lot for the customers.

PARENT-TEACHERS POSTPONE MEET UNTIL DEC. 14

The Parent-Teachers meeting, which was to have been next Tuesday afternoon at the Niles grammar school, has been postponed until Friday afternoon, December 14, in order that the members of the group may witness the grammar school Christmas pageant, to be staged that day, according to Mrs. Roland Bendel. Hour for the Parent-Teachers meeting will be 2:00 p. m.

Inasmuch as the pageant, conceived by Principal E. Dixon Bristow, is being put on for the first time this year, members of the parents group feel that more mothers may attend the meeting preceding the program. Immediately following the performance the group will hold a short business session.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Shinn, Jr., were hosts Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. Vern Kindig, of Berkeley, and Edward Crane, of San Francisco.

Personal News Notes

Frank Ferry drove to the Oakland airport Sunday to witness a test flight, made by Captain Ulm, trans-Pacific pilot.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Medau, of Oakland, visited briefly with Mrs. Rosalie Donovan Sunday afternoon.
